

Notes far above or below the staff hang on short ledger lines, drawn only as far as the note reaches.

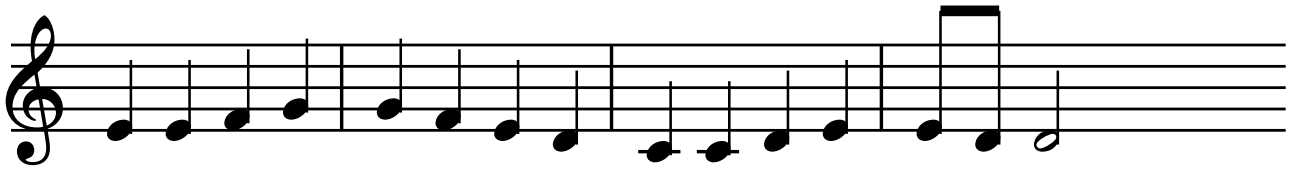

An accidental leads a note: + for a sharp, - for a flat, n for a natural. The sign is drawn just left of the head; it changes how the note is read, not where it sits, so +f and f share a line. Here a chromatic climb, then a sharpened note cancelled by a natural.

Eighth notes in a run are usually joined by a beam rather than each carrying its own flag. Bracket a group with [and] and the notes between share one beam.

8 Time signatures

Setting `\set musicctimenum` and `\set musicctimeden` draws a time signature after the clef. Three-four time, a waltz, with the beats grouped into bars.

9 The bass clef

Setting `\set musicclef {bass}` notates in the bass clef instead, where middle C sits one ledger line above the staff. Here a C major scale from the C below the staff up to middle C.
